

When the mad race for profit ends, what next?

The excessive voracity of the global economy is causing terrible human suffering and grave environmental degradation. We need, urgently, a viable alternative to multinational capitalism.

PROUT (the Progressive Utilization Theory) offers a future vision that is more sustainable. It is a new socio-economic model, developed by Indian philosopher P.R. Sarkar, based on cooperatives, ecological balance and universal spiritual values.

In this innovative book, you will discover:

- Prout's holistic solutions to eliminate poverty, improve the quality of life and turn every region of the world economically self-reliant.
- Why, different from capitalism and communism, Prout is in harmony with human psychology.
- How, in Prout's vision, it is possible to restore environmental balance and help the soul.
- Where projects and movements based on Prout are located in the world.
- How to implement economic democracy and self-reliance in your area.

"After Capitalism is a practical alternative, based on spirituality. It is practical and viable."

Howard Zinn, author of the bestseller,
A People's History of the United States

"Prout is very important for all who yearn for a liberation that begins with the economic and includes the totality of human existence."

Leonardo Boff, theologian

Dada Maheshvarananda, is a monk, writer, activist and teacher of meditation and yoga. He lives and works in Brazil.
